

18TH ANNUAL SCIENTIFIC CONFERENCE 2016

The burden of cancer care in Malaysia is rising significantly as a result of changing demographic pattern, increasing living standard, change in diet habit, aging population, and many other factors. With the significant advances in diagnostics, supportive care and therapeutics of cancer in the last decade, a greater proportion of patients are living meaningful, functional lives many years following their diagnosis.

This symposium is designed to be practical and relevance to the daily practises among primary care physicians and those who are involved in the care for the cancer patients. We will be covering three important areas of oncology\:

- Cancer diagnosis and advances in cancer management in the last decade
- Cancer genetics, screening & prevention
- Palliative care in terminally ill cancer patients

Undoubtedly, the family physician will be a critical member of the team in the continuum of care for cancer survivors.

Mark your calendar and join us for the 18th Penang Adventist Hospital Annual Scientific Conference.
